Subject: County and State Investment in R&D Facilities for Pharmaceutical and Biotech

It has come to my attention by recent news reports that Collier County is considering investing large scale funds into established companies in hopes of securing long term high paying jobs for the Collier County area. Apparently you're basing your potential decision on the track record of the company's ability to produce new and valuable products. Although I am not certain on these particular companies, as a general rule, we discourage municipalities from investing in companies that don't have contracts in place to produce intellectual materials for them. The likely hood of them repeating their previous successes is not good without these contracts. Experiment creation is the basis of advancement in these fields and without the definite conception of these new experiments, the odds of R&D personnel, by themselves, creating breakthroughs is not good we feel. The reality is that the money could be much better spent though the creation of an all fields international R&D and prototype manufacturing facility with myself as the primary entrepreneur, patent conceiver, and projects supervisor. This would create a far larger volume of commercial activity and prosperity for the Collier County area. This plan will require considerable cooperation with the USPTO as they have a dismal record of awarding the patent in the correct name.

Sincerely,

Michael R. Thomas
